C ▶ CD4 T16 TAPESCRIP

Al Green was born in Forrest City, Arkansas in 1946. By the age of nine, he was already performing with his brothers in a gospel quartet called The Green Brothers. They played many shows in the south of the US. When he was 16, he started an R&B group, Al Green and the Creations, with several friends from his high school. They later changed their name to The Soul Mates and their first single, 'Back Up Train' became a surprise hit, climbing to number five on the R&B charts early in 1968. However, the band never managed to have another hit and in 1969 Al Green became a solo artist. Over the next few years, Al released a number of albums, each one becoming more successful than the previous one. He also enjoyed seven consecutive gold singles during this time.

On October 18, 1974, Green's life was hit by personal tragedy when his girlfriend killed herself after an argument at his home. Green says that this incident was a turning point in his life and in 1976 he became a pastor at his local church. He continued to release albums but his popularity was in decline. In 1979 he suffered an accident while on stage and he took this as a sign to stop recording soul music and concentrate solely on gospel music.

He returned to popular music in 1988 when he recorded 'Put a Little Love In Your Heart' with Annie Lennox for the film Scrooged. Since then Al Green has continued to release both popular and gospel music albums.

That is all for this week.

Revise units 7-8 for next class. There will probably be some kind of checkout the week after next.

Sending your works to your teachers on the day you have English classes, is the best thing !!!

GOOD LUCK!!

HERE ARE SOME OF YOUR WRITINGS :, different ideas, thoughts, language management , vocabulary, but they are definitely worthy to be read!

1) WE ARE ENCOURAGED TO HELP EACH OTHER

Being there for someone when that person is in a troubling state is a very noble thing to do. However, many people wonder which moment of opportunity is theirs to act on and help as opposed to seeing every chance as such.

It is believed that the world is going downhill and that there are no good role models and people to trust. Comparisons between people are made stating that they are less bad than some others, trying to find an excuse for their imperfection. A few know better. Their efforts are focused on being inspired and encouraged by a small handful of people, things, acts and words that shines with the light of truth, while not letting themselves be negatively affected by anything else.

So, even though there are not a lot of experiences that motivate to do well to others and yourself, a bits of unselfishness are to be found.

2) Everyone is taught to (mis)trust each other

There are many selfish people in the world that are ready to do everything for their own sake. That's why we are taught not to trust everybody.

I don't think that we need to trust everyone, but I think that friendships and emotional relationships are built on honesty and trust. In my case, I have an inner circle of people that I can trust . And my best friendships are built on honesty, there are no secrets between me and my best friends and family.

I think that teenagers today should be more open with their families. Nobody loves us as our family do, but teenagers sometimes don't get that. Many problems are caused today because teenagers don't want to speak with their friends, parents.

I think we should be definitely more open with our parents and best friends, and talk about our problems. However, we shouldn't be direct and honest to everyone, as someone could misestimate our private facts. I think all of us should trust our beloved ones. We need to appreciate honest and trustworthy people, there are not many of them nowadays.

3)KINDNESS IS INFECTIOUS

Kindness is as an infectious disease. It is an excellent trait to have as a human being. Every acts of kindness grows the spirit and strengthens the soul. It's one of the greatest gifts you can give to someone.

If someone doesn't feel good - be kind to them, you would make their day. When you are kind, it does not only change you, it changes the world around you. We have a lot of ways to show kindness: use our manners, smile to everyone, help a stranger, etc... I think that we should always be kind, because that way we become better people and people around us feel much better, for sure.

4)Kindness is infectious

In this day and age, it's rare to see people treating each other nicely. Random acts of kindness are nowhere to be seen. But situations like this current one can prove otherwise. Many celebrities remind people watching TV to stay at home. This leads to some struggle, especially when it comes to the elderly. So many young people offered themselves to carry their groceries to quarantine they are in. There are a lot of other examples like children making protective face masks etc. But why stop there, when this whole crisis is gone. I'm sure that everyone will appreciate people around them more and do randomly little good things that will make their sky bright again.

5)Everyone is taught to trust each other

Trust is the act of believing and having the faith in someone, and believing that someone "will do right by you". Trust is both an emotional and logical thing. Everyone in life has experience with mistrusting someone , as it can leave people confused and hurt, and sometimes the relationships can never be the same. The most common way to lose someone's trust is lying. Its a failure to uphold a promise. But some things shouldn't be broken. Like secrets. There should be no reason for a secret to be broken unless someone is in danger, in which case only authorities should be told.
